INNOVATION UPDATE FROM ISRAEL IDEAS

Forgetting To Take Your Meds?

A New York Times article estimates that poor adherence to medication plans and schedules led to 125,000 deaths and at least 10 percent of hospitalizations in the U.S. It also costs the U.S. health care system somewhere between $100 billion and $289 billion every year.

For patients suffering from such life-threatening illnesses as cancer, chronic lung diseases or HIV, medication regimens can be daunting, with multiple pills or inhalers scheduled throughout the course of the day. But Tel Aviv-based startup Vaica believes things may be about to get a lot simpler.
