INNOVATION UPDATE FROM  ISRAEL IDEAS
Nonprofits Are Missing On Donations In The Digital Age

To reach millennials, businesses have been developing digital approaches to get their brand in front of today's 20- and 30-somethings, such as creating a presence on social media or distributing apps that provide value for users. One business that still hasn't figured out how to reach millennials is the nonprofit business. According to the CEO of the new Israeli start-up, PocketCause, U.S. nonprofits missed out on over $6.5 billion in donations from potential givers with whom they could not successfully connect. "Smartphone users who read email appeals from organizations on their smartphones tend not to respond, since so much email turns out to be spammy or scammy – and until PocketCause there was no other digital platform through which supporters of causes could donate."

A report prepared by PocketCause identified that "nonprofits are outstandingly poor at maintaining relations with their current donors. The sector has among the lowest retention rates of any industry in America: only 41% of donors make a repeat donation, compared to 94% in the for-profit sector. Among donors who've donated for the first time, 81% will not donate again."

THE PASSOVER PROJECT
A Jewish Campaign Against Slavery

This year, Har Zion Temple joins an ever-growing number of Jewish institutions across the country bringing awareness to the plight of slaves around the world today. Slavery is not legal anywhere, but it is practiced everywhere. Slavery is found wherever goods or services depend on manual labor. Worldwide, an estimated 21 to 36 million people are trapped and working without pay, under threat of violence. According to the International Labour Organization (ILO), slavery generates about $150 billion a year in profits for human traffickers.

Each week between now and Pesah, the Festival of Our Freedom, we will present you with materials which will both enhance your seder experience as well as to suggest things that you can do to relieve the plight of slaves in the world today.

For more information you may go to this website: www.freetheslaves.net/Judaism.

Modern Slavery - Seder Prayer
(To be read before the Blessing of Bitter Herbs)

"In remembrance of today's slaves, up to 4 million people trafficked each year, now, in our own time, some in our very own country, we eat this extra portion of maror. We remember women entrapped by criminals who promised them a better life abroad. We think of children sold into slavery who knot carpets or tend crops at this moment. We recall refugee men swept into captive labor. With this extra maror, we who are free share the bitterness of the lot of today's slaves, resolving to appeal to governments, leaders, and communities to end human trafficking for all time."
