INNOVATION UPDATE FROM ISRAEL IDEAS Global Food Producer Invests In Israeli Lab Meat Technology

One of the world's largest food producers is betting on Israeli technology to find ways to grow meat without raising or slaughtering animals. Future Meat Technologies is a Jerusalem-based biotechnology company that seeks to create cultured meat directly from animal cells through the production of fat and muscle cells, the core building blocks of meat, in a cost-effective manner. Israeli startup Future Meat Technologies said that it raised $2.2 million in a seed investment round co-led by Tyson Ventures, the venture capital arm of Tyson Foods, Inc. Tyson Foods is a Fortune 100 company and a processor and marketer of chicken, beef and pork. In addition to Tyson Ventures, the Neto Group, one of the largest food conglomerates in Israel; S2G Ventures, a Chicago-based venture capital fund; BitsXBites, China's first food technology venture capital fund; and Agrinnovation, an Israeli investment fund founded by Yissum, the technology transfer company of The Hebrew University of Jerusalem, also participated in the funding round, along with New York-based HB Ventures.
