INNOVATION UPDATE FROM ISRAEL IDEAS

Giving Voice to People Who Can't Be Heard

With the advancement of voice-powered technologies – like Siri and Alexa – a world of information and entertainment is now available to millions who are unable to access a device because of disabilities. But these individuals often have another problem: because of their disabilities, they cannot speak in a manner that voice-powered tech services can understand – and they also cannot communicate effectively with loved ones, who have a difficult time understanding them because of speech issues. That's where Voiceitt comes in. Their technology enhances people's speech, enabling them to speak in their own voices, to communicate with friends and family, and with voice-powered devices and systems. The Voiceitt system opens the world to millions who would never have been able to access information, music, video, news or social media, and enables them to develop and nurture personal relationships. It is for that reason that the company won a WeWork Creator Award. The awards are a global initiative to recognize and reward innovative projects.
