INNOVATION UPDATE FROM ISRAEL IDEAS

Saving Crops Worldwide with a New Safer Solution

One of the biggest dangers to many fruits and vegetable crops are nematodes – otherwise known as roundworms. However, those worms may now have met their match with Nimitz, a new worm-killer from the Israeli company, Adama. More than one out of every ten tomatoes, cucumbers, melons, okra plants, potatoes, and many more species are completely destroyed by roundworms... and when that happens, the rest of the infected crop is often too damaged to sell.

These roundworms have been the bane of farmers around the world, but a new solution from Adama Agricultural Solutions could end their reign of agri-terror. Nimitz, based on a newly-discovered molecule called fluensulfone, will get rid of the most common nematodes - without the use of heavy chemicals!
